Advertising Did It.

The Bee says: Do the people of Northern California realize how small a share of immigration this section of the State has been receiving? The recent school census indicates that during the past six years the population of Northern California has increased only four per cent., while that of the Southern half of the State has increased 56 per cent. San Francisco is omitted from this calculation. Now what is the cause of this remarkable unequal distribution of immigration? It can be given in one word—advertising. If Northern California wants her fair share, she must advertise, in every way possible, her resources and attractions. Neveradmight profit by the suggestion of the Bee.

School Books.

We have on hand at the Pioneer Book Store of J. G. Fox, a complete stock of all books used in the schools of this State. Also a full line of school stationery at reduced prices. Harper's New Geographies exchanged for Cornell's.

Gen. Hagerman and Mr. Mulcahy the soap manufacturer, gave Adams the nomination. They came in as Winters men but would not vote for anybody but Adams after that. Mason only needed their votes to win.

When baby was sick, we gave her Cuticura, When she was a Child she cried for Cuticura, When she became Miss, she clung to Cuticura, When she had Children, she gave them Cuticura

BOTH SIDES HAPPY.

How the Returns Please all the Editors.

No matter how the returns of an election come in, everybody seems delighted with the result, but it takes a Democrat to see cause for hilarity in everything. Flipflap county goes Republican by 150 majority, and the Republican editor writes:

"The glorious news from Flipflap county is only what might be expected after the brilliant campaign of McDoodle, although the large majority astonished the old timers. The boys had the old anvil out last night, and the hilarity is still in progress as we go to press. It is a glorious Republican victory and no mistake. The Democrats all looked pretty sick last night but it can't be helped."

Next morning the "Bugle" comes out as follows:

"The news of the election in Flipflap county struck the Republicans in this city all in a heap. They got out a lot of old anvils to celebrate a big victory, and were counting on 600 majority. When the news came of only 150 majority old Waddels didn't want to put up for the powder to fire the salutes. To keep appearances up, however, they banged off a few rounds and then quit on the plea that the anvil was over-heated and liable to burst. They spent the night drowning their sorrows in cheap rot gut.

"It was certainly an astonishing to see the dwindled little majority after the time and money spent in the fight, and the fuss and feathers. Last year, with a Prohibition ticket they did better. This year there was no Prohibition ticket in the field. Now, where did those 180 votes polled by the Prohibitionists before, go to? To the Republicans of course, and still their majority is but 150. What a falling-off there is my countryman. It shows that the people of that tax-ridden county are wearied of boss rule. The result is glory enough for one day."

From the Great East.

Charley Stoddard, who has just returned from the great East, reports that nine-tenths of the delegates are unemployed, and tell all comers that they do not propose to pledge themselves to anybody before the Convention meets.

Wherever he went and investigated the situation he found that the delegates embraced the best material in the various counties. Good, substantial business men, old live Republicans and taxpayers, of the sort not to engage in compromising trades, but to nominate the best material possible; men with good records and men who had worked for the party through thick and thin. The best of feeling prevailed everywhere, and all agreed that there was enough material available to make an exceptionally winning ticket. There are no mugwumps and no buckers in the East and he met no candidate there who intimated that he would raise a row if he was not chosen by the Convention.

The talk of Fair coming into the fight dismays nobody out there, they say "let him come if he wants to we are well equipped for him."

There is naturally a strong feeling for Judges Biglow and McKinney but as far as the other candidates are concerned opinion is very much divided, but no where are there any bitter fights being made, and every body is good natured and happy. They say if the Western men will hold their end of the State down they need not give themselves any concern about the East.

Humboldt Girls Applauded.

In the ladies tournament at the California State fair there were ten competitors for the prizes, among them, Miss Annie and Joanne Kemler of Paradise Valley. The Sacramento papers say that the Kemler sisters outdistanced all competitors, and were the chief attraction, their excellent riding eliciting rounds of applause. They rode their horses without saddles and when their turn came for jumping the hurdles they had the same placed much higher than the others, and made their horses take them on the run, amid the cheers of the spectators—Silver State.

—Just received at A. Bergman's, 25 dozen Boys' Pants from 50 cents up, also a few dozen Calico Waists, at 25 cents each. sep4tf

THE RESULT IN MAINE.

What Two Philadelphia Journals Think of Blaine's Work.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 17—The Times says editorially: Blaine has reason to congratulate himself on the result in Maine. It was made his own fight. It is his own victory, and with a majority of 10,000 or 12,000 in this off year and the Prohibition organization battered pretty much out of sight, he has made his own political pedestal high enough to make him a tower among the biggest of the candidates for 1888.

The Press says editorially: The result of the Maine election is worthy the attention of Republicans in other States. It was achieved by work and organization. There was no equivocation in the platform, and the chief State candidate nominated was worthy to represent the party's principles. The addresses of the stump were clear, decisive and strong. Blaine never showed himself better fitted for party leadership than in the campaign just closed. If any fear has lingered among the Republicans as to the effect Prohibition would have upon the Republican party's fortunes, it would be dispelled by the vote in Maine.

Miss Cleveland's Magazine.

The Literary Life, the magazine in Chicago edited by Miss Rose Cleveland has reached the APPEAL office.

We have been led all along to expect something wonderful in the cover of this magazine, but confess grave disappointment. It is about the worst cover, from an artistic standpoint, that we ever saw. At the top is a female in Greek attire, seated on a low stool, reading the Literary Life, and from the expression of her face not appearing to particularly relish its contents. Her legs are bent back under the stool in an awkward manner, like a Chicago girl trying to hide her big feet. Ribbons float all about her in the air.

Below are two other females. One has a high torch, as if she might belong to the Topeka Flambeau Club, and the other carries a small scroll in her hand, which might pass for an advertising bill. They are both dressed in Greek attire, with waists cinched clear up under their arm-pits. A good dressmaker, for about $4, could work wonders for all these women. The inside contains some of Miss Cleveland's work. She has been hard at work for a month and turns out four pages of literary matter. In spite of the time it took, it all bears the marks of hasty composition. Here, for instance, is a specimen of her style. It has the redundancy of one of the Administration messages, and the lack of anything to say, that one would find in a "Bunion" editorial. It reads as follows:

"It is a curious thing, however, to observe how, in spite of the enunciations of propositions and the reverse of propositions, and the settlements of the teachers and critics, certain demonstrations of unenunciated propositions silently take their way towards their flawless conclusions."

Some years ago a writer who knew how to condense thought, wrote:

"It is the unexpected that happens."

This is just what Miss Cleveland said, only she took forty two words to express what the other writer expressed more clearly in six.

The Lyon County Fair.

There are 40,000 feet of lumber on the grounds of the Lyon County Agricultural Association at Waduska, and the work of erecting a pavilion 30x60 feet is going on. A grand stand 22x60 feet is also being constructed and a good race track will be graded this week. The corral used last season will be made 200 feet longer and box stalls added to make twenty in all. There will also be twenty open stalls and pens. Good accommodations will be provided for all who attend and the programme will be such as is usual at agricultural fairs—stock and agricultural exhibits, racing, etc. So says the Times.

—Try Ayer's Pills, and be cured. Misery is a mild word to describe the mischief caused to body and mind caused by habitual constipation. The regular use of Ayer's Cathartic Pills in mild doses, will restore the torpid viscera to healthy action.
